

Co-workers with the Creator

Alexander Vyalov

Alexander Vyalov is an amazing person, says Sergei Golovin, LATM's field partner in Ukraine. He used to teach physics in school. After the Soviet Union collapsed, he was unhappy that nothing changed in education. So he became an agent of change and started Beginning of Wisdom school, based on Christian values and biblical principles of education. The school was doing so well, authorities could not shut it down despite informal prohibition of Christian school education for children. Unbelievers get on the waiting list to enroll their children in the school!

Alexander wrote this book because Communist propaganda had brainwashed several generations of citizens, saying that most Christians were ignorant, uneducated people, and that the Church gave nothing to civilization but crusades and inquisitions.

The book uses biographies of famous scientists, artists and musicians to counter that propaganda. Focusing on how their Christian faith impacted their life and work, it shows that Science and Arts were not always enemies of the Church, and that not all the great artists or "founding fathers" of Science were atheists.

Sergei adds, Exposing the truth on the issue will remove obstacles that keep many post-communist Science and Humanism worshipers away from the Bible.

