Yes, five projects in English. Several LATM field partners work in cultures where English is the predominant language, perhaps especially in academic settings. These five titles will be published for just such places.

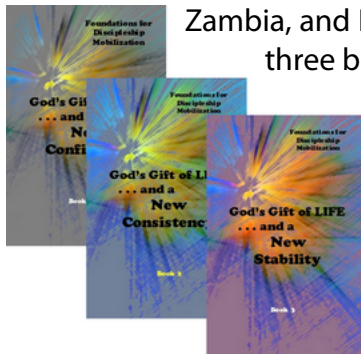

The first two titles will go to work in East Africa where many people read English, but not Kiswahili, their heart language. 28 Days in Matthew helps Muslims read and understand the Gospel of Christ. Distribution includes preacher-training schools, churches, and prison ministries.

Muslims and Christians Talking Together helps people talk about basic gospel issues. LATM has helped with three previous print runs of 2,000 copies each.

Dr. Larry Neimeyer of Harvest Heralds, working in Zimbabwe, Zambia, and Kenya for over 50 years, is the author of the other three books. He says:

In December, I plan to meet with key people in discipleship mobilization, and have written three small books for that time. These contribute to three foundational necessities of new disciples: God-prompted confidence, consistency and stability. To arrive at God-centered transformation is a great need of discipleship mobilization. Otherwise, the mobilization becomes the project of a church, an organization, or even of the resources themselves.

Your Book Club contribution in November will help publish 2,000 copies of the first two titles, and 1,000 copies each of the last three!
